ABSTRACT

[0063]   A computer system comprising a memory system that comprises a plurality of memory modules; and a memory controller that accesses the plurality of memory modules to service memory requests. The computer system also comprises an error-type memory controller that configures the noted access such that the memory controller can continue to access a failed one of the plurality of memory modules that incurred a soft error.